

Duck Decoy Diagram Sample Pack

The “Gauntlet”

The “Gauntlet” is an extremely fun way to setup duck decoys when hunting over water. This setup will require a boat as you are going to be out in the open. Large lakes and even oceans can be hunted this way.

One critical component to effectively utilizing the “Gauntlet” is ensuring that your boat is well concealed. You can buy fake reeds and other vegetation to drape over your boat or even go further and make a boat layout blind to conceal yourself. Another option is if there are some tall reeds in the water you can pull your boat into that area and use that natural cover to hide from approaching ducks.

“Gauntlet” Benefits:

- Great for large bodies of water
- Provides in your face direct shooting
- Requires a well concealed boat
- Will need 2-3 dozen decoys

The “Splash Zone”

The “Splash Zone” is a decoy setup that leaves a large opening for approaching ducks to land as they approach your spread. Essentially you are setting up your decoys in the shape of a “U” along the shoreline. This spread is versatile as it can be used on large or small bodies of water and can be accomplished with as few as 6 decoys or as many as several dozen decoys.

Another reason why this setup is effective is that you can either use natural covering if it is available or if you have a blind setup on the shoreline you can use that as well.

“Splash Zone”

Benefits:

- Use as few as 6 decoys or as many as 3 dozen or more decoys
- Can use natural cover or blind
- Large landing zone
- Works on small and large bodies of water
- Great opportunity to shoot other types of waterfowl

The “Family Affair” Setup

The “Family Affair” is a decoy setup that can be used to bag both ducks and geese. With this spread you are recreating the look of several groups of ducks and geese that have landed in a field that is plentiful with food.

Ducks and geese will often congregate with several of the same species so creating pods of 3-6 decoys of ducks and geese can help create a natural appearance.

“Family Affair” Benefits:

- Use both duck and goose decoys, typically 1-2 dozed of each species is a good starting point
- Opportunity to bag both ducks and geese
- Creates a natural family feeding appearance
- Gaps between the groups creates fly through paths for approaching waterfowl
